all in the pod

Keep everything you need to remember about your child's health in one place. HealthPod Baby is a guide to housing your child's vital health information including medical appointments, vaccinations, family health history as well as emergency phone numbers. The guide is optimally organized so it's easy to use. It's also encased in a handy, zippered lime-green pouch so all your papers are protected. HealthPod Baby is available at Lower Mainland retailers including Boomers & Echoes (North Vancouver). ## snow in september

safer baby bottles

By now, most of us have heard about the alarming discovery of chemicals (namely Bisphenol-A, a developmental, neural and reproductive toxicant that is commonly used to make clear polycarbonate plastic for consumer products) leaching from some popular brands of plastic baby bottles. The genuises at BornFree have developed and introduced a safer non-polycarbonate plastic baby bottle into the marketplace with its line of bottles. Not only is it free of Bisphenol-A, it also features a soft nipple that doesn't collapse and inner valves and air vents that help reduce the build-up of a vacuum (which can cause gas and spit-up) in the bottle.
